

Can't I get them done at the hospital?

Yes, absolutely. If you are having your baby at a hospital, you will have the option of having a newborn photographer come in your room and take newborn photos for you. In fact, I encourage you to have them taken while you are there. You never know when your newborn will be most agreeable, so I suggest you don't turn them away. If you get something you love and can afford, fantastic! If you don't love them, cannot afford a complete package, or want family poses as well as newborn poses, with a wider variety of props, backdrops, outfits, and poses for much much less money than they can offer, then see me instead!

When should I get them done?

The absolute best time is in the first 10 days, up to 14 days, but we can do newborn images anytime in the first 30-45 days.

What should I bring? What should the baby wear?

I photograph most babies nude, plus an outfit or two from my collection. If you have a specific outfit, stuffed animal, or handmade item that you would like to have your baby photographed with, please bring it with you.

I suggest you come prepared with a few of these things:

- * An extra set of clothes in case you get urinated on (It has been known to happen).
- * I keep it extremely warm in the room for the newborn, please dress in cool clothes for your comfort.
- * I love to incorporate some of mommy or daddy's passion into the session. If you have a hobby or passion, I encourage you to bring an item representing that. For example, if someone is a musician, you could bring a musical instrument or headphones; a fireman could bring a helmet and uniform; a book lover can bring a few books. If you need ideas, please don't hesitate to ask about what to bring when scheduling your session.
- * Mommy, daddy, and siblings are often used as accents in the newborn session. Plain matching tops and dark bottoms are often very classic and nice. I recommend skipping patterns or textures.

How long will the session last?

Typically they last between 45 to 90 minutes. There will usually be at least one feeding and diaper change in that time. It is important that we give your newborn all the time they need to settle in to a nice deep sleep.

I saw this adorable pose on Pinterest/Facebook/etc, I really want to try it, will you do that?

I am happy to attempt to recreate a pose you have seen elsewhere. Please communicate with me at the time of booking or bring a copy of the image to your session, along with any props that may be needed for the pose.

When will I see the images?

You will receive a password protected private link to view your online gallery within 7-14 days.
